

Newsletter Issue 4/2023

Kosovo: Waves of Progress: Exploring Successes and Insights from Integrated Water Resources Management in Kosovo

In 2020, Kosovo embarked on a coordinated effort to introduce integrated water resources management principles, aiming to alleviate pressures on water bodies, reverse degradation trends and unlock economic potential. This groundbreaking initiative known as IWRM-K Program, is set to reshape water resources management in Kosovo.

A first report of May 2024 summarizes the key achievements of the IWRM-K Program in Kosovo. The initiative aims to transform water management in one of the most water stressed counties in Southeast Europe. The report showcases the many waves of progress made by the IWRM-K Program in reshaping water management practices in Kosovo fostering a sustainable and resilient future for all.

